

LaTasha McCoy
10/16/2024

The logic being visualized is a prompt for the user to enter their name and passcode after landing on the site page. If entered correctly after the first attempt the user will have successfully logged into their account. If either the username or passcode are incorrect the user is prompted to enter their username and password a second time. If the credentials are wrong again, they are prompted a third time to enter this information, if entered incorrectly after the third attempt, the user is locked out of their account.

